Different facilities often have different alarm types (and steps to sounding alarms), however, there are three established alarm signals that many workplaces have under their obligations regarding AS 3745-2010 (Planning for Emergencies in Facilities) and the Work Health and Safety Act 2011. Some facilities will only have alarm tones, while others may also an Emergency (or Occupant) Warning System that includes a voice message or loudspeakers for the Chief Warden to communicate with everyone in the building at once. This blog will explain what these three alarm tones mean, and what you should do if they sound in your workplace. "Beep Beep" This is the first sound you'll hear in an emergency, and it means that you should prepare to evacuate the facility. This means turning off computers and other appliances or equipment, collecting the personal belongings closest to you, and securing anything valuable or confidential. Facilities with an EWS will also hear instructions from the Chief Warden about what you should prepare to do next. This alarm doesn't always mean you will go on to evacuate, so do not evacuate unless you hear the evacuation tone, and you're instructed to do so. "Whoop Whoop" When it's time to evacuate, you will start to hear this evacuation tone instead of the previous one. It will repeat at close intervals and is easy to identify by the rising and falling sound. The Chief Warden or other Fire Wardens will use the loudspeaker to issue instructions at facilities with an OWS. Even without an OWS, when you hear this tone it means you must evacuate immediately. Remember that you are not able to go back into the building until advised it is safe to do so. "Bringggggg" When you hear an alarm that is one continuous ringing sound, that indicates a fire has broken out. This can be triggered either by one of the Wardens via the EWS or by someone breaking the glass of a fire alarm. If it is not a false alarm, you will then hear either the "beep beep" tone to notify you to prepare for evacuation or the "whoop whoop" tone if you need to evacuate. It is a vital part of your workplace emergency management procedures to ensure all staff know what the different alarm types and tones in your facility sound like, and what they mean. Everyone in your ECO must know how to activate these alarms, and how to instruct those in the facility once they have been activated. Workplace Emergency Management is here to help, by developing emergency response procedures and training to ensure that everyone in your facility knows what to do when an emergency alarm sounds. Whenever you set a timer or an alarm on your Amazon Echo, it emits a default sound when your timer or alarm go off. It's not an annoying sound at all, but if it's not quite your cup of tea, here's how to change it and pick a better sound that's more geared toward your liking. RELATED: How to Set Up and Configure Your Amazon Echo Start by opening up the Alexa app on your smartphone and tapping on the menu button in the top-left corner of the screen. From there, tap on "Settings". Select your Amazon Echo device at the top of the list under "Alexa Devices". If you have more than one Echo, you'll need to complete these steps separately for all of the Echo devices in your house. Next, tap on "Sounds & Notifications". From here, you can adjust the volume of alarms and timers at the top. This volume is independent from other audio functions on your Echo. To change the sound for alarms and timers, tap on "Alarm" under "Notification Sounds". You can then select a sound to use. "Celebrity" is a category that features a small handful of celebrity voices as an alarm sound. Otherwise, take your pick from the list underneath "Custom". Whenever you tap on one, it will play the sound on your phone so that you know what it sounds like. If you're pleased with your selection, simply hit the back arrow in the top-left corner to go back to the main screen of the Alexa app. Only call Triple Zero (000) or dial TTY 106 if you are in critical need of emergency services (police, fire or ambulance) This website does not contain emergency information or warnings. If you require emergency information, click on your State or Territory below. HomePod, much like an iPhone or iPad, can be used as an alarm clock replacement to wake you up in the morning or remind you of important tasks. Using HomePod as an alarm clock is simple, but it is controlled separately than alarms on your iPhone and there are a few tricks to be aware of. Setting Using Siri The easiest way to set an alarm on the HomePod is to ask Siri. Siri can set a one-time alarm for you, or Siri can set recurring alarms that go off every day. Some sample commands: Hey Siri, set an alarm for 10:00 a.m. Hey Siri, set an alarm for 9:00 a.m. every weekday Hey Siri, set an alarm for 10:00 a.m. every Tuesday and Thursday Hey Siri, set an alarm for 2:00 p.m. labeled Flight Check-In Hey Siri, set an alarm for 9:00 a.m. every weekend TIP: Labeling your alarms makes it easier for you to remember them and to reference them again when giving commands to Siri. Managing Alarms Using Siri You can manage your alarms with Siri, too. For example, if you want to delete an alarm, you can say something like "Hey Siri, delete the 2:00 p.m. alarm," or "Hey Siri, delete all of my alarms." Changing an alarm is also possible, with a command like "Hey Siri, change the 2:00 p.m. alarm to 3:00 p.m. and if you want to know what alarms you have set up, say "Hey Siri, what alarms do I have on?" Siri will run through all alarms that are set up on the HomePod with that command. Managing and Setting Alarms in the Home App Alarms that you set up on the HomePod through Siri can be viewed and managed in the Home app. Open up the Home app. 3D Touch or long press on the HomePod icon on the main screen. Tap "Alarms." The "Alarms" section of the HomePod in the Home app looks a lot like the Alarm portion of the Clock app on the iPhone, so if you've used that, it should be immediately familiar. If you tap the "+" button, you can set a new alarm, and if you tap the "Edit" button, you can edit or delete an existing alarm. Tapping one of the toggles next to an alarm turns it off temporarily. With any alarm that you set or edit, you can add a time, cause it to repeat, and change the label. NOTE: Prior to the HomePod's release, there were rumors suggesting users would be able to set songs as custom ringtones for the alarm feature of the HomePod, but that is not possible. There is no option to change the default sound of the alarm on the HomePod. Disabling an Alarm When an alarm goes off on the HomePod, an alarm sound activates and the top of the HomePod flashes with a white light. To turn it off, you simply need to tap the top of the HomePod. If you don't have a free hand, you can also ask Siri to turn off the alarm: "Hey Siri, turn off the alarm." To snooze an alarm, you can say "Hey Siri, snooze" and it will snooze for a short period of time before the alarm goes off again. 33 Free Alarm Sound Effects.
